About the seminar

This APSE Energy Scottish Summit will be an event linked to the BIG Energy Summit which is held every spring. It will have similar objectives - in other words to provide our members with a chance to keep up to date with developments across the energy sector and related topics as well as promoting the collaboration's vision of the municipalisation of energy and a greater role for local authorities in the energy market within their localities.

The summit will be relevant to all local authorities from across the UK and will have a focus on Scotland in terms of case studies.

There is a wealth of experience and expertise available within the collaboration and that knowledge will be shared throughout the Summit in plenary sessions, workshops and through informal networking.

These summits are unique in that they focus solely on the requirements, context and opportunities for local authorities.

The theme of the Summit is 'Keeping up with energy'. We will be hearing from speakers on topics which will keep us informed about Government policy, new products and approaches, practical renewable energy related matters, case studies and expectations for the future - in other words the elements which need to be in place to provide an energy system which is smart and flexible.

The event will take place at the excellent venue of The Hotel Colessio, Stirling in Central Scotland on 2 and 3 October 2018.

The content for the event is designed specifically for a local authority audience and there are a range of senior councillors and officers in attendance who will provide the chance for networking and sharing of experience and expertise about energy related projects and policies in place across a number of local councils.

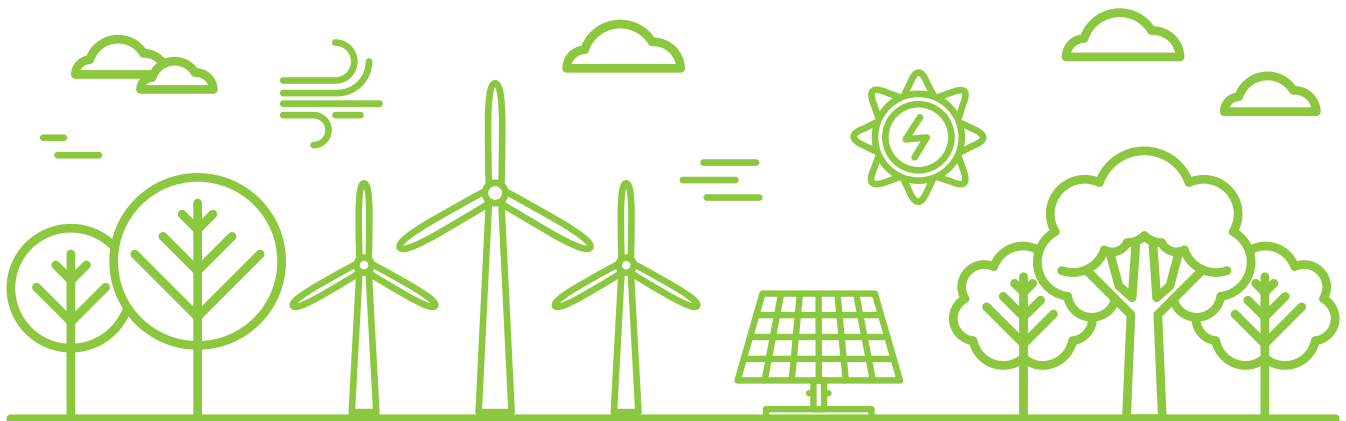

The Big Energy Summit is an important event in the calendar for the APSE Energy collaboration and each member local authority is entitled to 1 FREE place at the summit. We suggest that both a senior officer and elected member with responsibility for energy matters attends. The FREE place means that each APSE Energy member has a TWO FOR THE PRICE OF ONE OFFER. As places will be limited by the venue capacity, member authorities are urged to book attendance immediately.

Who should attend?

The summit will be extremely useful for all those involved in driving their local authority forward through innovation and new approaches. Senior managers and officers, directors of finance and resources and heads of service should attend along with senior councillors.

Senior managers with responsibility for sustainability, energy management, climate change, energy efficiency, assets and property, renewable energy projects, fuel poverty, service delivery models and policy development will benefit, as will senior councillor portfolio holders for energy and environmental issues, finance, commercial developments, asset management, regeneration and service transformation.

Reserve your place now by completing the booking form and faxing it or emailing to APSE on 0161 772 1811 or aholcroft@apse.org.uk
